President’s Annual Report—2016

by Tom Kehoe, President

It seems like only yesterday that it began, but my time as the Trust’s president ends at our annual meeting. I know the Trust will be in good hands with the new slate of officers taking office. Being a member of the Trust and its president has been a rewarding experience for me and I encourage everyone to become more involved with this great organization and support its worthwhile goals.

In our busy lives we often forget that we have such an incredible piece of nature in our collective backyards, over 4500 acres of open space and farmland comprising the Great Meadows. Though we may take it for granted that it is there, its continued existence was not a given nearly 50 years ago when the Trust was founded and it remains under threat even today. Thus the Trust and your continued support of the Trust play an important part in preserving this legacy.

Through its terrific volunteers, the Trust’s work continued this year with 40 property inspections and reports, six winter walks, plus two walks and two paddles on CT Trails Day. Numerous projects to improve paths, remove trash, remove invasive species and plant trees and plants originally found in the floodplain continued. The Trust remains on the lookout for additional strategic parcels to be acquired or donated to the Trust, so please let us know if you become aware of any.

Finally, I would like to say “Thank You” to all the officers, directors and working group members who have helped me during my term and who so enthusiastically help the Trust fulfill its mission and goals. You are truly an outstanding group of people, committed to preserving open space and farmland and it is my honor to be associated with you.

“The Great Meadows’..continued existence was not a given nearly 50 years ago...and it remains under threat even today. Thus the Trust and your continued support of the Trust play an important part in preserving this legacy.”

Goff Brook, swollen by the early freshet, reflects the trees of the floodplain forest, and the marsh cattails beyond, bathed in late February light fading to purple behind the rocky hill.

Corrie Folsom-O'Keefe, Director of Audubon Connecticut's Important Bird Area Program

Corrie Folsom-O'Keefe directs Audubon Connecticut's Important Bird Area (IBA) program which has identified nearly 40 critical bird habitats in the state. IBAs provide habitat for birds of conservation concern, support large numbers of birds, and/or include rare habitats and their associated bird species. They are also places where Audubon works with landowners and local communities to increase awareness on the value of these sites to birds and encourage stewardship.

The Great Meadows, along the Connecticut River in Rocky Hill, Glastonbury, Wethersfield, and East Hartford, provides valuable habitat for a variety of birds, particularly during spring and fall migration. Its flood plain forests and grassy fields (which can be seen from quite a distance from the air) provide stopover habitat for landbirds and shorebirds, while its coves and riverine shores are valuable to waterfowl. The area also supports two pairs of nesting Bald Eagles. During this talk, Corrie will inform us about the IBA program and what makes the Great Meadows such a special place for birds.

The Great Meadows, long recognized as an important area for birds and other species, is now gaining official recognition!

Monitoring Osprey Nests

According to Milan Bull, Audubon scientist, osprey have rebounded from a low of 8 nests in 1970 to over 600 nests. Monitoring all those nests is a huge citizen science project.

Jim Woodworth recently attended a training session and will monitor the two nests in the meadows every two weeks from the arrival of the osprey in a few weeks until the chicks are fledged and grown..

The Great Meadows environment isn't just for the birds. A species of special concern, the northern leopard frog, at right, was sunning him or herself on a recent warm February afternoon along Goff Brook.

GMCT and Wethersfield Game Club Sign Hunting License Agreement.

The Wethersfield Game Club has been protecting the meadows since its inception in 1933. Since the GMCT was incorporated in 1968, the two organizations have been partners in protecting the Great Meadows. So it was natural for the Trust and the Club to formalize their 50 year old gentleman's agreement in a written license.

duck boxes throughout the marshy woods of the meadows. According to Tom Hock, who directs the program, the count is 130 boxes with about a 25% success rate. That's a lot of ducklings! Every spring the boxes get fresh woodchips, and the results are reported to DEEP.

Land Management Committee Report 2016

Larry Lunden, Land Management Chair

This year the committee has completed inspections on 40 parcels. We almost got all the scheduled inspections done, but this is an increase of inspections from previous years. I thank Rick Doran, Ken Etheridge, Sandi Kelly, and Deb Creeden for their help in writing the reports.

All three of our conservation easements have been inspected. We have developed mutually beneficial communications with all of the land owners. I thank Betty Schmitt, Rick Doran, and Penny Rusnak for their thorough work.

Our leasing program with local farmers continues to keep 56 acres of farmland in active use. Our leasing program is being run by Rick Doran and Deb Creeden. I thank them for their efforts.

We didn't acquire any new properties this year. We continue to have 189 acres under ownership or easement, in 49 parcels.

The Connecticut Land Conservation Council has an annual conference in the spring. Rick Doran and I were on a panel of presenters on TerraFirma easement insurance and risk management. We shared our experience with our conservation easements with other land trust leaders in Connecticut.

We are working on a hunting license agreement with the Wethersfield Game Club. They have hunted in the meadows for many years under a verbal agreement. Now we are putting in the effort to make a written agreement between our organizations. We had many meetings to educate ourselves on how hunting activity affects our lands. The game clubs keep an eye on the meadows for any suspicious activity. They also do an annual cleanup of trash that is scattered around the meadows. The agreement has been finalized this spring.

Jim Woodworth is starting a project to replace the broken culverts on our Wood parcel. These have been broken for many years and get blocked by debris occasionally.

We held six winter walks for the public, co-sponsored with the Connecticut Audubon Society at Glastonbury and the Eleanor Buck Wolf Nature Center. We had an attendance of 279 people total. Meetup.com continues to be a good form of publicity.

Treasurers Annual Report – 2016

Rick Doran, Treasurer

The operations account and the investment account of the Trust remain in sound financial condition. The Trust maintains its operations account secured as a business checking account at TD Bank. The investment account is managed by Vanguard Investments and its value increased over 8% for calendar year 2016, compared to its net asset value at the end of calendar year 2015.

A phone interview was conducted with the Trust financial advisor at Vanguard. The conclusion by the financial advisor was that our mutual fund accounts continue to contain a balanced and diversified risk position, which will permit the Trust to attain our investment goals of current income and long term capital appreciation.

On February 16, 2017, the Audit Committee performed its review of all of the financial transactions conducted in 2016. The conclusion of the Committee noted that all deposit and expenditure transactions were properly applied, accounted and recorded by the Treasurer.

The annual budget for 2017 was presented to the Board at its February 23, 2017 meeting. The Finance and Development Committee recommended a balanced annual budget with income and expenses of $13,900 for 2017. This compares with actual income of $14,220 and $9,577 expenses incurred in 2016.

Winter Walks 2017—Classic New England weather Warm and Open with Frigid and Snowy Interludes

Wood Parcel—January 7

The Walk season began with a stroll into the Wood Parcel and along Anderson Farm fields, with strawberries and spinach waiting for Spring. Above, Steven Frechette, center, and walkers on "Frechette Field." Continuing along Beaver Brook marsh, a fine beaver lodge came into view, surrounded by water held back by a dam spanning the marsh. Wood duck boxes placed and maintained by the Wethersfield Game Club abounded. Our summer bird watching task: listen for Virginia rail and sora, two reclusive marsh birds likely living in the marsh.

Wolf Parcel—January 22

The Wolf Parcel/DeMille Easement walk proved interesting, between the beaver engineering and the immature eagle soaring over head. Our walk out behind the dike, under Route 15, under I91 and over the dike at the Brainard Airport approach area had added interest this year because of the controversial "obstruction removal" program announced by the CT Airport Authority. The scope of tree removals includes areas in the Folly Brook Nature Area, in Wethersfield south of the dike, as well as areas along the river on the east side of the dike. Below, the group walks along the sewer plant outfall from the dike out to the river. The value of this area of forest to the Important Bird Area was made clear by the new Eagle's nest and four heron nests in an area that supported a heron rookery 75 years ago before I91. The hope is for tree removal sensitive to the birds. No snow enabled the group to fill many trash bags.

DiPaola, Hayes Parcels—January 28

Looping through the DiPaola and out along North Meadow Road to the Hayes Parcels, the group found a wide open sky...and plenty of trash. One more motocross track season... then maybe there'll be less trash thrown out windows along N. Meadow Road.

Hockanum Meadow Feb.12. Great snow, lovely snow storm...only two of us nuts out enjoying the river!

Crow Point—February 5

led along the river bank to the east side of the cove. Excavated for the construction of Rte.3 and I91, Crow Point Cove is now a rich fish spawning area and a migratory bird stopover. The warm west facing slope of the Cove traps a trove of trash brought by flood waters washing over the bank and into the Cove.

Point Meadow—February 18

Warm sunshine and sparkling snow beckoned 60 walkers on a sunny Saturday morning across the Point Meadow causway and out toward the river, through the corn field and under the bridge. The corn grown by Rick Botticello for the pigs he raises in Overbrook Farm in Manchester can't be harvested and stored unless it is dry enough. The warm damp fall meant harvesting and feeding as he goes along. That morning trees nearby were hosting a flock of red wing black-birds. Just south of the Putnam Bridge is a view across the sparkling waters.
